Frustrated student quits program

By Sharon Stiller

Two days before the strike ended, Michael J. Deane, a Spokane State College student, quit the day after the strike ended. He quit because he felt that the strike was not worth the effort.

"While the university college faculty is still fighting the strike, Gonzaga College students like myself have not made any real contribution to the strike," Deane said.

Deane, who is a Spokane State College student, said he quit because he felt that the strike was not worth the effort.
